BANK OF PAPUA NEW GUINEA

KINA FACILITY RATE (KFR) FOR FEBRUARY 2010

The Bank of Papua New Guinea (Central Bank) is mindful of inflationary pressures from developments within the economy, despite the downward trend in inflation to September 2009. These developments include the weakening of the kina exchange rate, strong domestic demand and the fast draw down in Government trust accounts from the Central Bank. The growth in lending by commercial banks to the private sector of 14 percent over the year to November 2009 and the high levels of liquidity and currency in circulation are also of concern. In addition, the Bank is mindful of the upside risks to inflation in 2010 and the medium term that could come from: the continued depreciation of the kina against the Australian dollar given the strong recovery in the Australian economy, and increased domestic demand pressures associated with the LNG project and Government spending.

The Bank will therefore adopt a cautious approach in its monetary policy stance. In this regard, the public is advised that the Kina Facility Rate (KFR) for the month of February 2010 will remain unchanged at 7.00 percent.
