Maladina must get his sticky fingers off the constitution

PART 3 - FINAL

WHEN one looks at the whole document we call our Constitution, one will appreciate that it is a very comprehensive document that goes into minute detail to spell out what the Founders of the Constitution wanted to achieve.

The Constitution has not left anything to chance.

The fundamental principle underlying the Constitution is protection of the individual citizen.

Thus, the whole document is like a book that belongs to the ordinary people.

We cannot equate our Constitution with the book we call the Holy Bible, but it is fair to say that after the Bible, we have the Constitution.

It is a document to be revered or respected.

Unfortunately, our members of parliament do not seem to appreciate that the Constitution is a document that must not only speak for us today, but it must also speak for generations to come.

Seen in that sense, we must appreciate that the Constitution was not designed as a document of convenience to help any group of people to facilitate their agenda. What the constitution has done is to provide for the basic frame-work for a fair society that recognises rights and freedoms of an individual citizen and simultaneously, it provides for establishment and maintenance of a workable system of government with the necessary checks and balances.

In essence, our Constitution is a living document that embodies the wishes and aspirations of the people in the hope that in time, we the people would be able to build a strong and just society that caters for the welfare of the people. The Constitution was never meant as a working document for our members of parliament to do a "cut-and-paste job" to suit their greed for power and glory.

It is our view the original Section 27 of the Constitution has a two-fold effect. Firstly, Section 27 is an attempt by the Constitution to protect us, the ordinary people against excesses of power by the Executive Arm of the Government. This Section recognises that we the people are like a child still sucking its mother's breasts when compared to the powers of the mother and in this case, the government. In other words, when it comes to the crunch, the mother can abandon us by either denying us milk, or worse still, dropping us into a public garbage can along the street and that way, allow us to die.

And in the like manner, the government can deprive us of the necessities like health, education, training and employment by diverting the funds elsewhere and generally pay no attention to our daily requirements. The end result shall be that we will be illiterate (like we are now) so that we will still live like our ancestors did, generations ago, except that in this case, we will not be living in our villages, but rather in squatter settlements like Tete, 2-Mile, Morata, Erima, and 8-Mile without water, power and all the necessities and our kids will be running around the settlement like dingoes or wild dogs.

The second effect of Section 27 is to assist our members of parliament in a way that keeps reminding them that they are in parliament not to help themselves, but to help the people so that if the OC has enough information to form the view that our member is trying to steal the K10 million he receives annually, then the Commission must issue a direction to the member under Section 27(4) that in the opinion of the Commission, the member is not acting within the spirit of the law governing leaders. In effect, this is all Section 27(4) of the Constitution does. The OC uses Section 27(4) to tell the members that in their view, he is not acting as a leader under the Constitution and other laws which demand that he must conduct himself honourably as a leader.

What the Maladina Amendment does is to water down or take away that power of the OC to give directions to our leaders to ensure compliance with Section 27 of the Constitution and other laws which require that they act like leaders and not help themselves against the interest of the people. What the Maladina Amendment is telling us is this: The OC must not stop us from stealing. If the Commission has evidence that we are stealing, then in that event, it must shut up and wait until we have completed the act of thieving (stealing), and only then, can the Commission move in and exercise its powers to get us prosecuted before the leadership tribunal for an offence and not before.

Okay, for the time being, let us accept the argument by our members that the OC should not stop them from stealing. Also assume that the Commission sits back and watch them place that K10 million into their private bank accounts and start withdrawing from ATM Machines by use of their bank cards, and let us also assume that within 90 days, the K10 million has disappeared so the member's bank account registers a zero balance. So we ask, what happens in that event?

It is our view that two things will happen.

Firstly, the K10 million will be gone and there are no projects within the electorate which benefited from that amount of money.

And if the Commission moves in and tries to prosecute, the member may resign as a leader in which case, the Commission cannot proceed any further with prosecuting the member because he is no longer a member of parliament and thus cannot be classified as a leader, so he avoids prosecution before the Leadership Tribunal.

Secondly, what happens to that K10 million? Sorry, it has all been used up by the honourable member to benefit himself, his family and his associates. And he even used ATM machines to do the withdrawing. And what benefit did the rest of the people from his/her constituency get? A fat zero. And what happens to the member? NOTHING!

Thus, we ask: if we have enough evidence that the honourable member is about to misuse the funds, is it not reasonable for the OC to move in and stop the member from such conduct. Why should the OC sit still and wait for the member to go ahead and misuse the funds first before the Commission is allowed to enforce the law against our leaders? It does not make sense.

It is our view that ultimately, the big question boils down to this:

Whose money is it anyway that the honourable member wants to spend without any sense of accountability and transparency. Is it not public money? And if it is public money, (money that does not belong to the member), then why the push to spend it freely? If, in fact, the OC has issued directions to stop that money, then in that event the member can announce to his voters that he is unable to start any projects in the electorate because the Commission, in its wisdom, is not allowing it to happen. The member can even take the OC to court to force it to abandon its directions if there is no legal basis for it.

The Commission must be given a time-frame within which to conduct its investigation and a time-frame within which to recommend prosecution. You cannot hold the members to ransom for such a length of time that seems like forever.

However, having said that, let us get back to the main question: Should we still take away or water down the power of direction under Section 27(4)? We feel that the answer must still be an unequivocal NO! We ought to leave Section 27(4) alone but build in procedural requirements to get the Commission to exercise its powers to give the issue of such direction under Section 27(4). The member can argue that the Commission is acting in excess of its powers because there is no case for a direction to be issued under Section 27(4).

What we are saying is that Section 27(4) should be left alone because there are other ways by which the members can get around the dictates of this law. What the members can do is to allow Section 27(4) to stand as it is, but legislate on the procedures that the OC must follow in order to exercise that power of giving directions. For instance, the procedural requirement could dictate that there be a minimum evidential burden placed on the OC so that without such evidence, the OC cannot give such direction or directions. Secondly, there may also be a procedural requirement that upon receipt of a complaint on oath, the Commission must notify the member within 14 days and then complete its investigation within 30 days for example, and then notify the member of its decision, namely, whether there is any merit to proceed further in the investigation.

We agree with the general sentiments expressed by our members that if the Commission undertakes its investigation at a snail's pace, then it is quite frustrating to sit and watch the Commission move at that pace. You cannot hold up government in that fashion. This is a reasonable argument and in fact, it is true that the OC takes years to complete its investigations and in some cases, the prosecution is mounted more than 10 years after the event has transpired like it is now happening in the case of the Chief where he is now told after 10 years that he has not filed certain annual returns on his batch of free money from the Treasury. In our view, this is unacceptable.

The Commission must be given a time-frame within which to conduct its investigation and a time-frame within which to recommend prosecution. You cannot hold the members to ransom for such a length of time that seems like forever.

However, having said that, let us get back to the main question: Should we still take away or water down the power of direction under Section 27(4)? We feel that the answer must still be an unequivocal NO! We ought to leave Section 27(4) alone but build in procedural requirements to get the Commission to exercise its powers to give directions in a speedy manner to allow the executive government to implement its projects without any unnecessary delay.

Our members have also proceeded to amend Section 28 (5) of the Constitution. What Section 28 says is that the proceedings conducted by the Leadership Tribunal are not judicial proceedings but the rules or principles of natural justice shall apply so that the leader being prosecuted is afforded a fair trial on hearing with all the legal safeguards. And the Section goes further to provide that any proceedings against the member under any other law such as the Criminal Code. The effect of this provision is that even after the member is prosecuted before the Leadership Tribunal, let us say for misuse of public funds, he can also be charged under the Criminal Code for stealing or misappropriation.

What our members have done is to change all that by saying that they will pass another law to say that once a leader has been prosecuted under the Leadership Code, the same leader cannot be taken to court for the same matter such as a charge under the Criminal Code. The proceedings before the Leadership Tribunal shall operate as a bar against any other proceedings against the leader under any other law.

In our view, this is totally wrong. The Leadership Tribunal proceedings are, in essence, proceedings which are properly called "disciplinary" proceedings for breach of the Leadership Code. They only apply to our members and others like heads of statutory bodies and constitutional office holders. It is not the general law for general application across the board. If, for instance, you are a member of any organisation like a social or a sporting club, there are rules or a code of conduct which the members of that club must observe, and where a member is in breach, certain disciplinary charges may be laid against that offending member and he may even be sacked from that club.

I kam long pes 10

Let us say that the member who is sacked from his club was found guilty of striking another member within club premises. The sacking the member got was for breaching club rules and the proceedings conducted by the club to find him guilty were disciplinary proceedings and he was found guilty for committing a disciplinary offence. The fellow who was assaulted can even go ahead and charge that member for assault and have him prosecuted before a District Court and if found guilty, he can be either fined or sent to jail. And the fact that the member was sacked from his club for that offence is totally irrelevant. The general law which applies to everybody must still apply, which means the criminal law is still applicable.

What our members have now done is to say that if they are prosecuted for breach of the Leadership Code, they cannot be prosecuted before the Criminal Court for any criminal offence in respect the same subject matter which the Leadership Tribunal has considered. Thus, if each of the members steal the K10 million they get annually and then they are prosecuted by the Ombudsman Commission and found guilty by the Leadership Tribunal and then sacked from office, the same member cannot be charged under the Criminal Code for stealing. This is totally wrong and should not be allowed. Nobody who calls himself a leader would do a thing like that. This is immoral to say the least.

And the main power of the Leadership Tribunal is to recommend dismissal of the leader from office. Section 29 of the Constitution provides that where the Ombudsman Commission is satisfied that a leader is guilty of misconduct in office, the Commission may refer the matter to the Public Prosecutor to prosecute the leader before a Leadership Tribunal and if the Tribunal finds the leader guilty, it may recommend dismissal from office. This power of dismissal has now been watered down so that upon finding a leader guilty, the Tribunal must also determine if the matter was of a very serious nature and if dismissal is really warranted and where dismissal is not warranted, in that even the Tribunal can only recommend or give the leader directions to comply with the Leadership Code.

This is an unnecessary piece of amendment. The Leadership Tribunal does not need the amendment to Section 29 to perform its functions. Upon finding a leader guilty, the Tribunal will proceed to consider if the leader should be sacked or not and the deliberations that follow will consider if the offence is of a serious nature or not, and if dismissal is warranted or not. Thus, the Section 29 amendment is totally useless.

The biggest shock must be the amendment to Section 219 of the Constitution whereby the members have proceeded to establish a Parliamentary Committee to oversee the functions of the Ombudsman Commission. The new body is called "The Ombudsman Commission Committee". The members have created a new Section 219A. The functions of the Committee are spelt out under Section 219A(2) as follows:

(2) The primary function of the Ombudsman Commission Committee is, ...

(a) to consider and report on any report relating to an administrative complaint; and

(b) to monitor and review any aspect of the workings, functions, operations and administration of the Ombudsman Commission; and

(c) to investigate on its own initiative or on complaint by a person affected and report to parliament, any conduct on the part of -

(i) the Ombudsman Commission or an Ombudsman Commissioner; or

(ii) governmental body or an officer or employee of a governmental body, where the conduct is or may be wrong; and

(d) to refer a matter to the appropriate authorities for further investigation and prosecution, disciplinary action and to ensure compliance with the laws, as the case may be.

The above functions belong to the Ombudsman Commission. There is no rationale for our members to create a parliamentary committee to undertake functions which the Ombudsman can handle by itself. Why the duplicity? One can only assume that ultimately, the Ombudsman Commission will be abolished because its powers are now being withdrawn and the parliamentarians have now placed themselves in a position to undermine the workings of the Commission.

Our members must appreciate that in their capacity as elected members, they must protect the desires and the aspirations of the people as embodied in the Constitution.

They are trustees holding public office on behalf of the people who are the real beneficiaries. It is rather sad that our members have forgotten the oath they have sworn when they entered parliament. One thing that stands out very clearly now is that the members are all acting in concert to protect their status as parliamentarians and to empower themselves to run our lives without the necessary protection against the abuses of power and governance.

With their amendment to Section 27, they have created themselves "masters of their own destiny" when it comes to spending public funds so even the Ombudsman Commission cannot stop them now, even if there is evidence that they are misusing public funds. Section 28 has been amended so that our members can avoid criminal liability if they are prosecuted under the Leadership Code. And finally, Section 219 of the Constitution has been amended so that the members have now appointed themselves to oversee the functions of the Ombudsman Commission.

In our view, this must be about the worst parliament since Independence. One thing that stands out very clearly is the greed for power and money. All these amendments are all about staying in power and spending public money. If we are unable to stop these guys violating our constitution, then we must not forget that these very people who have supported these amendments will be back on the road in the year 2012 beginning us to re-elect them back to parliament.

Each one of us who will go to the polls in the 2012 must never forget what these guys have done.

We must make it our business to ensure that they are not returned to parliament. We must make it our business to throw them out in 2012.

Whether we elect better leaders in 2012 is irrelevant. Our primary goal in 2012 must be to throw these crooks, scoundrels and petty thieves out of parliament and that means the whole lot of them numbering 109 members.

SABINA.
