Why the political power and money game?

THE PNG Constitution, just like any other written constitution, is a political document that has the force of law.

You can compare our constitution with the Book of Genesis.

Where Genesis is all about creation of the world, our constitution is firstly about creation of a nation, and how the nation must conduct its business of government. In effect the constitution is a code of rules.

Let us take the game of soccer for instance. In a soccer game, there is the referee, who controls the game to ensure that the game is played by the rules. In our case as a nation, we have the judges who play basically similar roles as the referee. And whereas the referee is there to ensure that the soccer players comply with the rules of the soccer game, our judges are there to ensure that we the people conduct ourselves in the manner stipulated by the law.

What has happened to our nation just recently, is that we have two groups of politicians each claiming that it is the lawful government of Papua New Guinea.

Sir Michael's group was ousted by Parliament on 2/8/11 and a new Prime Minister was elected thus giving creating the second group, namely, the O'Neill-Namah group. Following that event, the Somare Group took the matter to the Supreme Court and asked the Court to decide if what Parliament did on 2/8/11 was constitutional or unconstitutional.

The Supreme Court Application was filed on 5/8/11 and all the parties to the case concluded their submissions or arguments on the 28/10/11. And the Court was adjourned to 9/12/11 for the five senior judges to make their decision or ruling. Thus, by the time the decision was handed down on 12/12/11 the O'Neill-Namah government had been in power for over 4 months.

The Supreme Court ruled that the lawful Prime Minister was Sir Michael Somare. And the Court also ruled that Peter O'Neill's appointment was unconstitutional. The Court was split 3 in favour of Sir Michael and 2 against. The 2 judges against Sir Michael are Gibbs Salika, the Deputy Chief Justice, and Bernard Sakora, a Senior Judge.

Salika DCJ argued that the NEC was largely at fault in keeping Parliament and the public at large in suspense over the matter of Sir Michael's health so what Parliament did on the 2/8/11 was somewhat justifiable. His Honour did not attend to the legal issues raised in the Application. Rather His Honour's decision is more like the political views expressed by the O'Neill-Namah group. Had his Honour concentrated strictly on the legal issues raised, he would have come to the same conclusion as the other 3 judges.

And as for Judge Sakora, his argument was largely that the events of 2/8/11 had come and gone and a new order was in place so that the Court should not dwell on the events of 2/8/11, but look beyond that to recognize the new order of things, namely, that there is a new government in place. Thus, he relied on the legal principle of state necessity to allow the new government to remain in power.

Thus, judge Sakora said this has happened in some African countries and Pakistan where a illegal government takes over power and the legal system accommodates that government because the new government is in effective control of the institution of state and the machinery of government.

Again Sakora J did not attend to the legal issues raised in the Application. He appeared to have glossed over the issues and concentrated on justification for allowing the new regime to remain in power. Had he concentrated on the legal issues, he would have come to the same conclusion as the other three judges, Injia CJ, Gavara-Nanu J, and Kirriwon J.

The above three judges concentrated on the legal issues raised namely, whether the creation of a vacancy in the Office of the PM was in compliance with the constitution, and secondly, whether the appointment of Peter O'Neill as the new PM was also in compliance with the Constitution. And on both these issues the three judges made the ruling that Parliament had no power under the constitution to create a vacancy in the Office of the PM where there is an existing PM and in his absence, there is a lawfully-appointed Acting PM, therefore the appointment of Peter O'Neill was null and void and of no legal force and effect.

However, the final orders issued by the Supreme Court was the orders of the Supreme Court and that means the full court comprising the five judges. And the principal order was that Sir Michael Somare should be reinstated forthwith and Peter O'Neill should also vacate the Office he was holding illegally. However, Parliament responded by passing a law that said the events of 2/8/11 were legal and not illegal. And in case there was any doubt, they re-elected O'Neill as the PM.

The new law passed by parliament is of doubtful legal effect, in that again the constitution may have been violated in parts, because parliament cannot pass an ordinary legislation to have the effect of a constitutional amendment. In order to amend the constitution, parliament must pass a law called a constitutional amendment by following the procedures set down in the constitution. However, it would appear that the Somare camp is not taking the matter back to the Courts because the situation now is that the O'Neill government does not intend to give up power that easily and will do anything and everything under the sun to remain in power.

And what is the driving force behind this political and legal turmoil in this country.

Behind all this political crises is the politician's desire to wield power over others, accessing the National Treasury for funds to conduct their election campaign for next year, and the perks of office.

Yes, the O'Neill government dished out K500 million in 90 days after taking Office but we do not have any information on the recipients and what that vast sum of money was for. And they continue to hand out large sums of money and that leaves people wondering if it all boils down to a money-game waged by both sides.

Whatever the political game is, we must not lose sight of the fact that we have a written constitution which provides the framework within which the game of politics must be played. And then we have the judges who must play the role of a referee to ensure that the game follows the rules.

In that sense, we insist that the judiciary must not be attacked publicly for that role it has to play under the constitution.

Above all, the constitution must be respected.

If you want to change the constitution, then you must follow the procedures set down in the constitution to amend the constitution.

All governments must respect the constitution and all constitutional office holders.

MEDIA STATEMENT

Detection of rabies virus in dogs in Bali, Indonesia

This statement is put to clarify NAQIA's position on the recent reports by both the Local and international media on the reported diagnoses of Rabies in the Indonesian Island of Bali.

Rabies is a viral disease primarily of animals (dogs, wolves, fox, monkeys, bats, antelopes). It is transmitted to humans through a bite or contamination of scratch wounds by virus infected - saliva. Transmission through mucus membranes of the mouth, conjunctiva and the anus has been documented. Human to human transmission has never been reported.

In dogs the disease occurs in two forms; first form is when the animal becomes very quiet and withdraws itself into dark places and the second form is when the animal becomes aggressive and starts barking unprovoked and bites anything.

There is no treatment for rabid patients including humans. Vaccination and management of the disease in affected areas remains the key to reducing infection.

Rabies is prevalent in much of Africa, Asia and Europe. Most provinces in Indonesia reportedly have Rabies. The main host is the dog. This is the first time the disease has been diagnosed in a dog in the restive Bali Island.

The National Agriculture Quarantine & Inspection Authority (NAQIA) is the biosecurity authority of PNG and is mandated to protect the country from exotic animal and plant diseases. It is our responsibility to inform the public when there is a real or perceived pest and disease threat in our country. Rabies is a zoonotic disease and NAQIA is quite aware of the possible effects if such a disease ever entered our shores.

We advise the general public that the Indonesian province of West Papua is free of the Rabies disease. We also advise that Papua New Guinea is also free of dog Rabies disease.

There is however a likely chance the disease will spread to West Papua and while it is unlikely that it may ever spread to PNG, it is not impossible. The most likely routes for the disease to enter PNG are through the border villages of Wutung, Indonesian fishing vessels, and logging vessels. Ordinary people exchanging hunting dogs or bringing dogs from West Papua is a sure way of spreading the disease to PNG. We ask people involved in trade along the border regions to cooperate with the authorities to minimize the risk by restricting movement of animals across the border.

NAQIA already has a biosecurity awareness program in Sandaun and will step up these activities along the perceived high risk areas/regions. Under a proposed Lab capacity building project, appropriate NAQIA staff will be trained on the rabies fluorescent Abs test in late January/early February. We have also communicated with our colleagues in Australia to determine if a coordinated assistance program is possible.

While these options are being investigated, we appeal to the general public to remain calm on the issue as we monitor the situation. Anyone wishing to make public statements regarding biosecurity and public health risks surrounding this issue is asked to seek advice through the Office of the Chief Veterinary Officer or the Managing Director of NAQIA through Tel: 3112100/3112114
