Diabetes a Major Health Concern

Concerned about your health or the health of a loved one over diabetes? Please read and share the message.

The following symptoms of diabetes are typical. However, some people with type 2 diabetes have symptoms so mild that they go unnoticed.

Common symptoms of diabetes:

- Urinating often
- Feeling very thirsty
- Feeling very hungry - even though you are eating
- Extreme fatigue
- Blurry vision
- Weight loss - even though you are eating more (type 1)
- Tingling, pain, or numbness in the hands/feet (type 2)
- Delayed wound healing

Early detection and treatment of diabetes can decrease the risk of developing the complications of diabetes.

Diabetes - that's not the only disease you should be concerned about because Diabetes itself is linked to a host of other health problems.

It's not all doom and gloom however; there are ways to reduce your risk.

Number one is blood glucose control - If you can control your diabetes, then your risk of developing those complications and secondary conditions go down.

These five conditions are the big ones to look out for if you're pre-diabetic or have diabetes:

1. Heart disease and stroke
2. Vision loss (Eye Problems)
3. Kidney disease
4. Nerve damage
5. Amputations

As we say "prevention is better than cure" and Pacific International Hospital specialist doctors have come forward to write a series of articles on Diabetes and its complications.

This week Dr. Sudesh Subedi - Consultant Ophthalmologist and the First Vitreo Retinal Surgeon of PNG explains about eye problems linked to Diabetes.

Eye problems and diabetes

If you have diabetes, regular visits to your ophthalmologist for eye exams are important to avoid eye problems.

High blood sugar (glucose) increases the risk of diabetic eye problems.

In fact, diabetes is the leading cause of preventable blindness in adults aged 20 to 74.

If you have eye problems and diabetes, don't buy a new pair of glasses as soon as you notice you have blurred vision.

It could just be a temporary eye problem that develops rapidly with diabetes and is caused by high blood sugar levels.

High blood sugar in diabetes causes the lens of the eye to swell, which affects your ability to see.

To correct this kind of eye problem, you need to get your blood sugar back into the target range (90-130 milligrams per deciliter or mg/dL before meals, and less than 180 mg/dL one to two hours after a meal).

It may take as long as three months after your blood sugar is well controlled for your vision to fully get back to normal.

Blurred vision can also be a symptom of more serious eye problems with diabetes.

The three major eye problems that people with diabetes may develop and should be aware of are cataracts, glaucoma, and retinopathy

Cataracts and Diabetes

A cataract is a clouding or fogging of the normally clear lens of the eye.

The lens is what allows us to see and focus on an image just like a camera.

Although anyone can get cataracts, people with diabetes get these eye problems at an earlier age than most and the condition progresses more rapidly than in people without diabetes.

If you have a cataract, there is a cloudy area in the lens of your eye that results in the inability to focus light, and your vision is impaired.

Symptoms of this eye problem in diabetes include blurred or glazed vision.

During cataract surgery, the cloudy lens is removed or cleaned out and replaced by a clear man-made lens.

PIH remains the only hospital in PNG to offer Phacoemulsification (keyhole surgery) technique for cataract.

Diabetic Retinopathy

The retina is a group of specialized cells that convert light as it enters through the lens into images.

The eye nerve or optic nerve transmits visual information to the brain.

Diabetic Retinopathy is one of the vascular (blood-vessel related) complications related to diabetes.

This diabetic eye problem is due to damage of small vessels and is called a "microvascular complication".

Kidney Disease and nerve damage due to diabetes are also microvascular complications.

Large blood vessel damage (also called macrovascular complications) includes complications like heart disease and stroke.

Diabetic Retinopathy is the leading cause of irreversible blindness in industrialised nations.

The duration of diabetes is the single most important risk for developing retinopathy.

So the longer you have diabetes, the greater the risk of this very serious eye problem.

If retinopathy is not found early or is not treated, it can lead to blindness.

People with type 1 diabetes rarely develop retinopathy before puberty.

In adults with type 1 diabetes, it is also rare to see retinopathy before five years' duration of diabetes.

The risks of retinal damage increase with progressive duration of diabetes.

Intensive control of blood sugar levels will reduce your risks of developing retinopathy.

The DCCT, a large study of people with type 1 diabetes showed that people with diabetes who achieved tight control of their blood sugars with either an insulin pump or multiple daily injections of insulin were 50%-75% less likely to develop retinopathy, nephropathy (kidney disease), or nerve damage (all microvascular complications).

People with type 2 diabetes usually have signs of eye problems when diabetes is diagnosed.

In this case, control of blood sugar, blood pressure, and blood cholesterol with diabetes have an important role in slowing the progression of retinopathy and other eye problems.

Types/Stages of Retinopathy in Diabetes:

Background Retinopathy or Non-Proliferative Diabetic Retinopathy (mild, moderate, severe stages of NPDR)

Sometimes the blood vessel damage exists, but there is no vision problem.

This is called background retinopathy.

It's important to carefully manage your diabetes at this stage to prevent background retinopathy from progressing to more serious eye disease.

Maculopathy.

In maculopathy, the person has developed damage in a critical area called the macula.

Because this occurs in an area that is critical to vision, this type of eye problem can significantly reduce vision.

Proliferative Retinopathy.

New blood vessels start to grow in the back of the eye.

Because retinopathy is a microvascular complication of diabetes, a disease of small vessels, this type of retinopathy develops because of an increasing lack of oxygen to the eye from vascular disease.

Vessels in the eye are thinned and occluded and they start to remodel.

Here, it is important to address the risks factors that can worsen the occluded vessels.

Stopping your smoking habit, high blood pressure control, cholesterol management, and blood sugar control must take place in order to stop the progression of new vessels forming in the retina of the eye.

These are fragile vessels that can bleed and eventually cause a clot to form fibro-vascular band in the retina and vitreoretinal interface which scars and causes detachment of the retina. This eventually leads to irreversible blindness.

Treatment of diabetic retinopathy involves laser procedures or surgery.

In a study of people with diabetes with early retinopathy, laser therapy to burn the fragile vessel resulted in a 50% reduction of blindness. Fortunately PIH can provide you a comprehensive diabetic retinopathy treatment which includes FFA (Fundus Fluorescein Angiogram), OCT (Optical Coherence Tomography) for diagnosis and Laser Treatment (Photocoagulation) and Vitrectomy surgery.

To prevent retinopathy with diabetes, have your eye doctor screen your eyes annually. Women with diabetes who later become pregnant should have a comprehensive eye exam during the first trimester and close follow-up with an eye doctor during the rest of their pregnancy to avoid serious eye problems.

The American Diabetes Association offers these eye care guidelines for people with diabetes to help prevent eye problems:

People with type 1 diabetes should have a dilated eye exam by an ophthalmologist within three to five years after diagnosis.

People with type 2 diabetes should have a dilated eye exam by an ophthalmologist shortly after diagnosis.

Annual eye exams should be done with both type 1 and type 2 diabetes by an ophthalmologist or optometrist, more frequently if necessary.

When considering pregnancy, women with a history of diabetes should have an eye exam prior and during pregnancy. This does not pertain to women with gestational diabetes.

To prevent eye problems in diabetes, you should:

Control your blood sugar

Control high blood pressure

Control kidney and heart problems

Control hyper-cholesterol

Change your food habits and reduce the body weight

Start morning exercise or fast jogging.

Immediately contact Your Eye Doctor if you are diabetic and have following Eye Problems. But remember don't wait till you have eye symptoms because it may be too late to restore the vision.

Black spots in your vision

Flashes of light

"Holes" in your vision

Blurred vision

American visitors overwhelmed by PNG's hospitality and culture

By Veronica Hatutasi

THE hospitality and friendliness of the people, diverse cultures and the pristine natural beauty of the environment has overwhelmed and won the hearts of four Americans who recently visited PNG.

Three sisters Emma Wingert of Nebraska, Rose Sternberg of Iowa, Jane Berkley and cousin, young Zoe Arkfeld came all the way from the USA on a pilgrimage to visit the grave of their late uncle Archbishop Leo Arkfeld SVD, fondly known in the Catholic Church circles as the "Flying Bishop" of Wewak, and also, to participate in the consecration and installation of the new bishop of the Wewak Catholic diocese, Bishop Jozef Roszynski last month.

Archbishop Leo Arkfeld, the Flying Bishop and a long time Divine Word Missionary in the Sepik was bishop of Wewak and also served in Madang, died in 1999 was buried at the Wirui mission cemetery in Wewak.

He was fondly called the "Flying Bishop" as he was a missionary pilot and in the absence of good road network from the 1960's through to the early 80's, Archbishop Leo flew the plane to do his pastoral and missionary work, as well as health, education, mission needs, emergencies and general deliveries to the many rural outstations, mission posts and parishes in the Sepiks and the Momase regions.

Along with the three sisters and cousin was long-time missionary priest in the East Sepik, Goroka and Port Moresby and also, a one-time financial controller and general manager of Word Publishing Company, Fr Vince Ohlinger SVD. Fr Vince is the nephew of late Archbishop Leo Arkfeld.

He is now retired and living at the SVD retirement house in Wisconsin, he was happy for the chance to return to PNG, a place where he spent the prime of his life in the service of the church and people of this country. He left PNG in 2001.

The four women were overwhelmed by the friendliness and hospitality of the people they met, saw, spoke with.

They were adventurous even, to have a taste of crocodile meat offered to them on their brief rendezvous along the mighty Sepik River.

By the time they had completed their two weeks in PNG, the 5 visitors had travelled in various modes of transportation including flying from Port Moresby to Wewak, by car from Wirui in Wewak on a three and half hours drivable road to a mission post in Timbunke in the middle Sepik, by canoe on the mighty Sepik River and by road up the Highlands Highway to Goroka and Hagen.

After completing a degree in combined Anthropology & Sociology focusing in Latin America from the University of Santa Cruz in California, Young Zoe is currently helping out with her parents business while at the same time, pursuing a Masters in Business Studies & International Development.

She is fascinated by PNG and plans to return one day, if a chance comes her way.

"We all had a great time in PNG, talked to many people on the general happenings and it is interesting to see many different types of people, yet with many commonalities, desires and family structures.

"Everyone was really nice and helpful. This is a unique trip and a pilgrimage to remember our late uncle's 15th death anniversary, and also for the installation of the new Bishop for Wewak.

"I didn't know what to expect as I was too young and didn't know the late bishop, and the work he did in PNG. But from what people said and did showed us he was well known, admired and loved, and he impacted on the lives of many Papua New Guineans.

The four visitors had a memorable experience on their travels and for one, the three hours' drive to Timbunke in mid Sepik was fantastic, though generally, the road was "not too good, but drivable.

"We travelled by canoe on the Sepik River, ate stewed crocodile meat which tasted delicious! But the heat was more than we are used to, however, the beautiful natural scenery, friendly people and the rich cultural activities we saw on our way compensated for that. I would like to spend more time in PNG, and I plan to return in future," Zoe said.

"The wonderful welcome at Timbunke by the villagers who gave us young coconuts or kula to drink and the singing group on the boat was incredible," Rose said.

She also stated that the singing during the new bishop's installation ceremony which was a blending of tradition and the normal liturgy was something unique but awesome.

The biggest changes that Fr Vince has seen in Port Moresby in his 14 years of absence in PNG are, the rapid population growth in the city, and the deteriorating road conditions in some urban towns and cities, but the friendliness and hospitality of the people remains intact.

"There's lots more people now in towns and everywhere else one goes. Roads are a lot worse than previously, especially in Mt Hagen and Goroka.

In Port Moresby though, there are more road-works and roundabouts which can get confusing.

"But the people remain the same as ever, happy, cheerful, and everyone greets you and I greet them back, which is nice."

Fr Vince congratulated the Wantok staff for their good work in keeping the newspaper going despite the many challenges faced.
