RHEUMATIC FEVER : ANOTHER BACTERIAL THREAT

Another threat that is caused by bacteria is Rheumatic fever, which is caused by the group A streptococcus bacteria (streptococcus pyogenes). And the worst case scenario is when Rheumatic Fever leads to Rheumatic Heart Disease.

A few international news networks last week were telling the story of 17-year old Reynaldo Nilo from the Philippines, who was from an impoverished family, and was going to travel all the way from the Pacific to Africa, in Khartoum in Sudan to be given free open heart surgery courtesy of the Italian organization Emergency (featured in the Oscar awards nominated documentary "Open Heart").

It may start off initially a strep throat or scarlet fever, and usually affects younger people from 5 years of age to 15 years of age. Though becoming rare in developed nations due to antibiotic use, it can still fairly occur in developing countries. It is essentially an inflammatory disease.

The sad thing is that there is no vaccination available yet to specifically ward off rheumatic fever. And its symptoms may remain "hidden" in the person until it is already affecting the heart. The streptococcus bacteria seems to more likely occur in situations of overcrowding and poor sanitation. There are no "surefire tips" that can be said about the locations or settings where this bacteria originates from.

Rheumatic fever signs and symptoms — which result from inflammation in the heart, joints, skin or central nervous system — may include:

Fever

Painful and tender joints — most often the ankles, knees, elbows or wrists; less often the shoulders, hips, hands and feet

Pain in one joint that migrates to another joint

Red, hot or swollen joints

Small, painless nodules beneath the skin

Chest pain
Heart murmur
Fatigue
Flat or slightly raised, painless rash with a ragged edge (erythema marginatum)

Jerky, uncontrollable body movements (Sydenham chorea or St. Vitus' dance) — most often in the hands, feet and face

Outbursts of unusual behavior, such as crying or inappropriate laughing, that accompanies Sydenham chorea

When to see a doctor

Your child should see a doctor if he or she has signs or symptoms of strep throat. Proper treatment of strep can prevent rheumatic fever. Call your doctor if your child has any of the following signs or symptoms:

A sore throat without cold symptoms, such as a runny nose

A sore throat accompanied by tender, swollen lymph glands (nodes)

A red rash that starts at the head and neck, then expands to the trunk and extremities

Difficulty swallowing anything, including saliva

Thick or bloody discharge from the nose, which is more likely in children under 3 years of age

A bright red tongue with bumps all over it, known as strawberry tongue

Left untreated by antibiotics at an early age, the bacteria causes reactions within our body's immune system that results in the internal inflammation.

The deadly consequences crop up once the inflammation gets to affect the heart.

This infection causes swelling and muscle damage to the heart. It can also damage the heart valves in a way that keeps the blood from moving through the heart normally. The infection can cause heart valve leaflets to stick together, which narrows the valve opening. Also, the infection can scar the valves. This keeps the valves from closing tightly, so blood leaks backward in the heart.

If the aortic valve is narrowed, this problem is called aortic valve stenosis.

If the mitral valve is narrowed, this problem is called mitral valve stenosis.

If the valve does not close tightly and blood leaks backward, the problem is called aortic valve regurgitation or mitral valve regurgitation.

But very rarely there is isolated valvular lesion of stenosis or regurgitation, there is combination of stenosis with regurgitation.

Once it is already a case of Rheumatic Heart Disease, then the solution is open heart surgery.

DR.O.P.SHARMA, the MEDICAL DIRECTOR AND CHIEF CARDIO-THORACIC AND VASCULAR SURGEON, PIH, when interviewed said,

"The rheumatic valve disease is a big challenge in a way that the disease damages the heart valves to quite a great extent by the time it is diagnosed.

There is calcification of the valve and /or multiple valves and this prevents the chances of repair of the valves and only option left is valve replacement.

Because of a latent period of 15-20 years there is rise in the pressure of the lung's arteries also and this with time gets worse.

Since rheumatic heart disease gets diagnosed late as it is a disease of low socio-economic group the management of rheumatic valve disease becomes quite tedious.

More often than not the patient ends up having valve replacement surgery of one or multiple valves and then the patient is bound to be on blood thinning medicines for rest of his or her life.

With the newer valves the patient can live a normal life but needs to get regular check up with the cardiologist and heart surgeon."

One affected by rheumatic heart disease, the only solution is open heart surgery, which is now available all year round at the new PIH.
